

Making SREB's 2018 Surveys Work for Your School

The High Schools That Work (HSTW)/Technology Centers That Work (TCTW) and Making Middle Grades Work (MMGW) school surveys provide an opportunity to collect authentic and anonymous student and teacher feedback. SREB uses these surveys to produce personalized school reports that provide a summative look at where the school is in implementing the new SREB school improvement framework. The SREB Student Surveys determines students' completion of the SREB-recommended college-ready core and asks about students' classroom experiences, expectations of their learning environment and postsecondary and career goals. Teacher surveys explore the level of support from school leadership, teachers' views about improving student achievement, expectations of students and the extent to which they use instructional practices that improve student achievement.

What is the value of your 2018 SREB Survey?

- Allows schools to establish baseline data, identify areas of strength and areas needing improvement and track progress over time.
- Allows schools to compare their current standings with all schools and schools implementing best practices.
- Shows student and teacher responses in several indices that are proven predictors of student performance, including:
 - Rigorous literacy and mathematics curricula and assignments in middle grades core courses
 - Rich STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) projects and learning experiences in middle grades
 - Challenging and engaging curricula in high school core academic and career pathway courses
 - Quality career pathway experiences, including project-based learning and work-based learning opportunities
 - High school senior year designed around preparing students for next steps in postsecondary education options and/or careers
 - A challenging and encouraging positive school climate
 - Academic and career guidance
 - School leadership and an emphasis on continuous school improvement

SREB Services

SREB will use data collected from the student and teacher surveys to create a traditional report for all school with findings, recommendations and a scaled score for each component of the SREB framework. This report provides comparison data for your site, all sites, and a “best practices” site.
