Closing Remarks

2019 SREB-CCEN Conference Objectives

Upon completion of this conference, participants will be able to:

- 1. Develop new approaches that prepare nursing faculty in creating and sustaining communities of civility in nursing education and healthy teaching/learning environments using role modeling, mentoring, stress management and other strategies.
- 2. Integrate new tools, including virtual reality, other technology and active learning models, into nursing education which promotes student and faculty engagement and improves outcomes while transforming learning.
- 3. Discuss best practices for incorporating diversity and inclusion in nursing academic programs and strategies to enhance the experience for a diverse population of students, and how diversity and inclusion impacts faculty recruitment and retention.
- 4. Analyze applications of effective teaching/learning and mentoring strategies for the development of novice (early career), research & scholarship (mid-career), and nursing leadership (Deans and Directors) as they engage with nursing students in today's education settings.
- 5. Analyze legal issues in nursing education and explore appropriate avenues for issue resolution and future prevention.
