

Session Proposals — At a Glance

Institute Theme:

A Community of Mentors: Building Scholars and Developing Leaders

The Institute on Teaching and Mentoring seeks session proposals that center mentoring as a critical driver of scholar success, leadership development, and academic pipeline strength. Sessions should support learning and connection across career stages and contribute to a shared community of practice among scholars, faculty, mentors, and administrators.

We are especially interested in sessions that:

- Address one or more points along the academic pipeline
- Highlight mentoring as a practice, framework, or strategy
- Offer practical, actionable takeaways participants can apply in their own contexts
- Foster engagement, reflection, and shared learning
- Are inclusive, interdisciplinary, and responsive to diverse experiences

Intended Audiences (select one or more):

- Undergraduate/Master's Students
- New Ph.D. Students
- Matriculating Ph.D. Students
- Early Career Faculty
- Faculty Mentors
- Administrators
- Other (please specify)

Session Formats May Include:

Interactive workshops, facilitated discussions, skill-building labs, applied case studies, or other engaging formats that encourage participation and exchange.
