

SREB

Student Success Key Practices Feedback

SREB Meeting of Legislative and Governors' Staff
Kimpton Tryon Park Hotel Charlotte, North Carolina
October 10–11, 2024

Welcome

Michael A. DeJesus III, Ph.D.
Director of Student Success and Access
Student Success Steering Committee

Jeffrey Grove
Program Specialist, State Strategies and Policy
Student Success Steering Committee

Why do we need a framework for student success?

1. Increase Access for All Students
2. Support Completion and Persistence
3. Align Education with Workforce Needs
4. Facilitate Seamless Transitions
5. Develop Data-Informed Strategies
6. Strengthen Economic Outcomes
7. Implement Holistic Student Supports

Activity 1: Defining Student Success

- Read page 1 of the Student Success Framework Draft.
- Underline words that resonate with you and circle words that evoke questions.
- Discuss at your table what you annotated.
- Let's hear from a few of you!

How to Read the Document

- Four pillars that make up student success:
Access, Retention, Persistence, Attainment
- Each pillar has a definition and four key practices
- Key practices are directed at three different groups:
 - State Level Education Leaders and Policy Makers
 - K-12 Schools
 - Postsecondary Institutions

Activity 2: Examining Key Practices

With your group and SREB scribe:

- Examine your group's assigned pillar of the framework.
- Starting with the pillar definition then moving on to the key practices, discuss what you like, what should be changed, and raise any questions you have.
- Write feedback, comments and questions on the document in front of you or submit them to the SREB scribe.
- Select someone to very briefly share out for your group.

Share Out

Questions and Next Steps

Acknowledgements

Harriette Scott

SREB Vice President for Postsecondary Education

Harriette.Scott@SREB.org

Student Success Committee Members

Postsecondary Education

Ansley Abraham

Allison Buckley

Elisa Jaden

School Improvement

Beth Green

Carita Venable

Chuck Boyd

Communications

Jahana Martin

State Strategies & Policy

Jeffrey Grove