00:45:17 SREB - Kathleen McNally: <https://www.sreb.org/publication/powerful-project-based-learning-instructional-practices>
00:45:29 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Link to the Powerful PBL practices
00:46:02 Suzanne Kerr: will this recording be available after the class
00:46:20 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Yes, it will, Suzanne.
00:46:52 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: I will post it here on our Free Webinars website AND send a message out to the emails with which you registered. https://www.sreb.org/free_webinars
00:47:05 Suzanne Kerr: Thank you
00:48:23 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Go Baby Go is WONDERFUL.
00:51:04 Ivy Alford: share audio please
00:51:12 Ivy Alford: it's good now..TY
00:57:15 Ivy Alford: The students were faced with relevant questions that were interesting to them (and their community)
00:57:26 Bernard Zdancewicz: As a teacher, you need to prepare for potential questions.
00:57:26 Erin Eaton: YouTube is a huge factor...for better or worse
00:57:49 Suzanne Kerr: Using the community
00:58:06 Ivy Alford: Love watching them with a real "client" in go baby go
00:58:09 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Teachers were really acting as facilitators and asking questions
00:58:21 Robin Anderson OK OSDE: Student was passionate about something and was proactive in learning on his own.
00:59:45 Mary Bayham-caraco: I think that is correct that we need to teach students to understand reliable sources when learning-even in utube.
01:00:13 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Yes, Mary!
01:00:42 SREB - Marty Sugerik: Project Launches provide opportunities for involving business and community partners to authenticate the work.
01:04:58 Erin Eaton: Can someone share the specific Ted talk you are referring to?
01:05:35 Erin Eaton: Thank you!
01:06:55 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Yes, projects can form part of a strong portfolio that employers want to see!
01:06:58 Ivy Alford: That Google Site is amazing!!!
01:07:42 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: <https://sites.google.com/view/srebpb/home>
01:07:59 Danielle Morton: Hate to leave but have to pick up my daughter from school. This has been great!
01:08:12 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Glad to have you with us, Danielle! I'll send you the video link.
01:08:13 Marianne Moore: We have youth assist with developing materials. They bring a whole new view to our work in special education.
01:08:20 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Thanks for joining us!

01:08:21 Danielle Morton: TY

01:08:54 SREB - Kathleen McNally: That is a fabulous practice, Marianne!

01:09:37 SREB - Kathleen McNally: <https://www.menti.com/ea7747njg9>

01:10:29 Suzanne Kerr: Knowing your Blood Pressure numbers

01:10:43 Erin Eaton: This isn't really answering the question, but we just had a Zoom session w/ our first year CTE instructors (community colleges) and the speaker mentioned service learning in CTE. This resonates with your question.

01:11:55 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: some rich examples in the Mentimeter and here in the chat.

01:16:18 Marianne Moore: Working on developing self determination skills with young people who have disabilities. Youth have helped develop the materials that teachers now use. We also include them as we develop our Youth and Parent Summit and MOVE conference.

01:17:05 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Awesome!

01:17:15 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Way to empower your students!

01:17:45 Ivy Alford: asking questions

01:18:01 Robin Anderson OK OSDE: Developing leaders, collaboration, accepting feedback

01:18:02 Erin Eaton: Giving them responsibilities

01:18:15 Ivy Alford: being thoughtful about the "customer" and making real-life connections (e.g. the cruise control on the car)

01:18:16 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: students are working in real workplace roles - and they seem really engaged, invested and professional. These classrooms look like adult workplaces.

01:18:29 Suzanne Kerr: Critical thinking and solveing

01:19:38 SREB - Marty Sugerik: Documenting the process, constructive feedback, and extension questions in a professional journal encourages reflection and sustained-inquiry.

01:22:54 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: CTE advisory councils are great partners in PBL!

01:24:21 Erin Eaton: Could you all also provide a link to this video? (I might have missed it.)

01:24:59 SREB - Leslie Eaves: It is in the agenda along with our full series. I will show everyone where it is.

01:25:13 Erin Eaton: Gotcha

01:25:28 SREB - Kirsten Sundell: Yes, we will include this video in the email that goes out. BUT, if you are interested in our PBL videos, we have a playlist on YouTube! <https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PL50mPSkXkJNeE5pVILIK-93fj-vmaVxpR>

01:26:36 Erin Eaton: Awesome, thank you!

01:28:22 Ivy Alford: Love the authentic feedback and connections

01:28:22 Erin Eaton: Connecting them with industry folks who can provide more information

01:28:30 Ivy Alford: helping students think through their solutions

01:28:56 Bernard Zdancewicz: I think the students saw that their work was valued.

01:29:16 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Yes, Bernard!

01:31:06 SREB - Marty Sugerik: A great tip is to ensure students presenting take any feedback, reflect on it and prepare a response to complete the iterative process.

01:31:33 SREB - Kathleen McNally: Great tip!
