Virginia Shows Gains in Education Outcomes, Policy

State's SAT Score Increased, Topped the Nation, and Led the Region

Atlanta, Georgia — July 12, 2016 — Virginia continues to improve public education by several key measures, according to a new report from the Southern Regional Education Board.

Gauging Progress, Accelerating Pace reports on recent growth on outcomes and policy activity in the SREB region. The reports show the 16-state SREB region leading the nation on early childhood education access and quality, narrowing some achievement gaps between racial and ethnic groups, and surpassing the national average for high school graduation rates. Yet the report's demographic and student achievement data foreshadow the difficult job states face: getting more students college- and career-ready so they can become successful adults and states can meet future workforce needs.

This report focuses on the region's progress — and on determining what it will take to help each state accelerate pace.

Notable outcomes for Virginia students

- Fourth-graders outperformed the nation in reading and math achievement on NAEP (National Assessment of Educational Progress) at the Proficient level. They also outpaced the region and nation in gains in reading and math at the Proficient level.
- Eighth-graders outperformed the nation in reading and math achievement on NAEP at the Proficient level.
- The state's average composite SAT score increased, topped the nation, and led the region.
- The percentage of graduating seniors who passed at least one AP exam topped the nation and region.
- The six-year graduation rate for first-time, full-time freshmen who entered public, four-year colleges and universities topped the national and regional rates.
- The percentage of working-age adults with an associate degree or higher topped the nation.

Strong policy in Virginia

- The state's learning standards are aligned from birth through grade 12.
- The state has led the region in implementing a comprehensive teacher evaluation model.
- The state requires readiness courses for high school students who do not meet its college- and career-readiness cut scores in math or reading.
